

ROOFS

When moving on a roof, a worker is exposed to risks: slipping, falling over the edge or into open spaces. If there are not sufficiently strong securing points on the roof, securing points on the ground can be used. When the worker moves near the edge of the roof, the risk of falling increases and then it is necessary to incorporate a fall absorber.

